

Cyan Kicks

The Helsinki, Finland-based quartet Cyan Kicks plays anthemic electronic modern rock in the vein of PVRIS and CHVRCHES with a touch of northern melancholia. Susanna Alexandra's emotive vocals soar clean and tempered, frail and heartfelt, and the tight interplay of authentic bass and drums with tasteful electronic effects and breakbeats provide a driving pulse and dramatic ebb and flow dynamic that keeps the listeners on the edges of their seats.

The band carefully honed their craft to perfection with seven successive singles before dropping their debut album "I Don't Love You" in 2019 and got deservedly nominated for an Emma Award (the Finnish GRAMMY equivalent) in the Best Rock Album category.

And it's not like their standards are lowering: in 2021 they kept on dropping high-quality material with their EP "Not Your Kind".

Cyan Kicks kicked off a new era with the single "Invincible" in the late 2021 and with their 2nd full length album in sight, the band is officially applying for Eurovision Song Contest in 2022 with their song "Hurricane".
